THE SENIOR CLASS OF

SHARON HIGH SCHOOL

Sharon, Massachusetts

Volume XXI JUNE 1961

Mr. James J. Dowd

A Man Dedicated To High

DEDICATION

In the autumn of 1957, our paths first crossed. Since that time, we, the Class of 1961, have come to realize and appreciate all that Mr. Dowd has done, not only for our class, but for every phase of school life. With all the numerous and important responsibilities he has, he still finds the time to take a personal interest in every club, organization, sport, and activity of the students of Sharon High.

Since that day in September, Sharon High School has grown in stature, has gained much dignity, and has achieved many honors. School spirit has risen and school pride has increased. The students themselves have acquired a new sense of dignity and respect.

Space does not allow us to list every individual thank you, but we hope that this dedication will express in a small way the gratitude of all of us, the entire student body of Sharon High School. To you, therefore, Mr. Dowd, we dedicate this our Marsengold of 1961.

Quality and Scholarship

HOW SWIFTLY PASS THE SEASONS

FOREWORD

The calendar year cantains four seasons; but the schaol year is made up af only three —fall, winter, and spring. Each autumn we return ta schaal with hapeful plans far a year of learning and enjaying. Winter finds us intently involved in our academic studies and extra-curricular wark. And with spring, the close of the year, comes a sense af satisfaction and accomplishment. Because aur activities and schoolwork occupy these seasans, we have chasen them for the theme of our Marsengold. We hope that this book will be kept as a chronological record af the fall, winter, and spring of the schaal year, 1960-1961.

Every graduating class has many memories, and certainly those of the faculty are prominent among them. The teachers are not only interested in their subjects, but also in their students as people. Individuals among them have made deep impressions on the minds of many students and have greatly influenced their choices of careers. The Sharon faculty makes the school.

In the past, madern fareign language departments have striven to acquire praficiency in reading. It is naw apparent, hawever, that we must be able ta meet ather peoples af the world an their own graund. The objectives, therefare, have been braadened to include speaking and understanding the language. Ta reach these ends, a direct methad French course has been intraduced at the ninth grade level and language labaratory equipment has been purchased.

Beginning caurses in Latin stress the development af logical thaught and the impartance of correct study habits. Advanced Latin cancentrates an the influence af Latin culture upan English literature as well as English vacabulary. The course in Cicero emphasizes the relatianship between ancient Rame and modern palitics.

Today's English student benefits from a new outlook in his literature program ond in his writing instruction. Though still interested in the traditionol learning of titles and outhors, he devotes much time to learning and refining his reading skills, thus providing himself with keys to the greot ideas. It is in these ideas thot he sees the common ground of all the feelings ond actions of all men. In leorning to express his ideas he has frequent opportunity to write long themes as formerly, but now he develops writing effectiveness by mastering the discipline of the single paragraph. The library, an indispensable adjunct to his English program, aids him in his quest for the liberation that ideas and power to express them bring.

Recent developments in the fields of instruction in mathematics and science have resulted in changes in curricular structure as well as course content in these areas. We now offer four years of mathematics beyond Algebra I, and a four-year science program beyond General Science.

Though these sequences allow for advanced studies, they are not now organized along the lines of the formal Advanced Placement Service. The new structure provides to pupils with special abilities and interests in the fields of Mathematics and Science, opportunities for advanced or concentrated study in the secondary program. The traditional sequences, with interest modified in the light of recent changes, are still offered in the regular preparation for the terminal pupils.

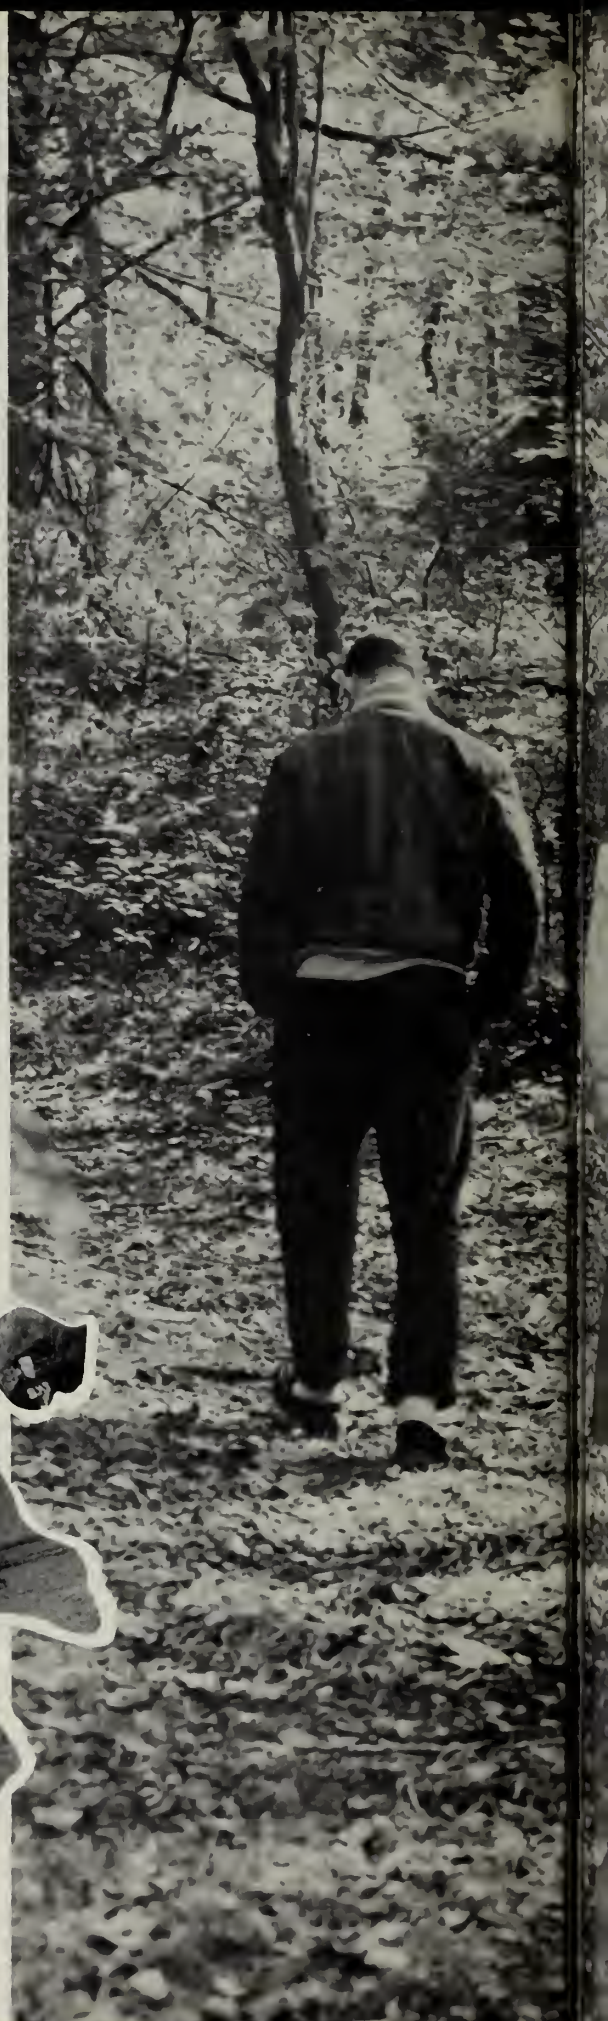
Everyone, bursting with enthusiosm, is onxious to take port in at least one of the foll octivities, which, in no time, ore moving along ot o ropid poce. Senior ploy reheorsols ond Marsengold stoff meetings hove top priority on the ofternoon hours of mony seniors. At the some time, the Eagle staff is working hord to moke sure thot the first edition of the school newspoper is the best yet. Meonwhile, the library stoff is busy orgonizing its roster of assistonts to work ot the charge desk.

As some students ore industriously working inside the school, outside, o lorge percentoge of the boys are withstonding exhoustive exercises in the hope that they moy be chosen for the soccer teom.

Thus, while the soccer seoson ond the production of the senior ploy ore the high lights of the fall seoson, it is olso the period of orgonizotion ond preporotion of ground work for the loter events in mony groups.



FALL

Student Council Membership

This year the Student Council of Sharon High School, consisting of a representative from each of the twenty-four homerooms and the vice-president of each class, has met weekly under the direction of president Edward Keane and faculty advisor Mr. Liberman. Besides working in the supply room, the members served on separate committees revising the constitution and compiling a scrapbook and a school handbook.

Council supply room does increasing business.

The Student Council of 1960-1961 has had a busy calendar throughout the school year. As the first fall meetings were called to order, business—such as dress regulations for dances and school functions, distribution of student identification cards and a formation of a roster of student greeters —was brought to the floor.

During the winter and basketball season, the Council sponsored the Christmas Drawing Contest and sold candy at the boys' games.

As we go to press, the members are planning for a scholarship dance in April; and in May, they will supervise the important elections of class officers for next year.

Throughout the year, the Council's most important function has been maintaining liaison between the students and faculty.

Work Of Librarians Increases

"Get in line for reserved books," calls the girl at the desk as the students stream into the library.

As well as collecting passes, the members of the library club, under the supervision of Miss Marion Clark, check and reshelve books and aid in arranging seasonal displays.

Meetings are neia every three weeks at which the members learn interesting details about library work and learn the responsibilities involved in keeping a neat and useful school library.

It may be that their experience in the club will encourage them to pursue their library interests in college and throughout life.

The harmonious sounds which filled the music area during lab periods on Tuesdays and Fridays often rose from the Glee Club, meeting under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Edwards. This year, besides the Glee Club, the vocal music program also included a Girls' Chorus. The quality of performances, such as the Winter Assembly, has been outstanding this year. Among the many worthwhile activities conducted during the past year by the Glee Club and Girls' Chorus were the annual Thanksgiving Interfaith Service and participation in the District Chorus.

Hustling Soccer Team Unbeaten

The boys dashed eagerly down the field in pursuit of the bouncing soccer ball and victoriously booted it over the goal line. Another game won!

The long grueling hours spent practicing old and new skills and doing calisthenics paid off; for, again this year, our soccer team, under the leadership of Coach Blanchon, won the South Shore Soccer Association Championship. Congratulations, team, for a wonderful and successful year!

MARSENGOLD

Ta blend perfectly all the ingredients necessary ta create a baok was the gaal af the Marsengold staff. Mare specifically, this gaal was to praduce a baak that wauld mirrar Sharan High Schaal and serve as an example af the schaal's finest work and praudest achievements.

Fram early fall, when the Business Staff first began its wark, ta early spring, when the last Literary Staff assignments were campleted and the last phatagraphs taken, the staff members concentrated their efforts to make Marsengold 1961 the best yearbaak ever. This undertaking, althaugh exacting and time-cansuming, praved to be enjayable. The tharough canvassing af Sharan and surrounding towns far advertisements made the financial end af the baak an enarmaus success. The writers busied themselves praducing copy about the various schaal activities, writing up features, and composing character sketches af their classmates, while the Co-editars strave ta design the mast attractive page layouts.

Finally, an March 15, after months af inspiratian and wark an the part of the entire staff, the campleted baak was sent ta the printer.

Smash Hit As Ghosts Run Loose

Who threw this bottle?

The house . . . ! Five thousond dollars!

A darkened auditorium set the atmosphere for the entrance of Revolutionary War apparitions as the curtain rose on Gramercy Ghost, class play of 1961. Although the fantasy lasted only two hours, it represented five weeks of diligent work for Mr. Newton, the cast and crew. Rehearsals were called for afternoons and evenings on school days in addition to several on weekends and vacation days. Behind the scenes, many seniors constructed sets, created costumes, and gathered props, while others got out publicity and sold tickets. However, the hard work was certainly profitable, as was seen at the commendable performance given on November 18, 1960.

School is running in high gear by the time winter arrives. The clubs have been organized, classes established, report cards issued, and the study time of certain disgruntled students doubled. The library staff has learned to work efficiently; the debating team has decided on its topic and is busy challenging other schools. The band has played for three assemblies, and, of course, the literary staff of the yearbook has begun meeting almost daily. In February, new members to the National Honor Society are tapped.

"Victory, victory, is our cry! V-I-C-T-O-R-Y!" Twice weekly stimulating cheers are heard at the basketball games. The pep rally before the first game is perhaps the most anticipated event of the season. With sports, clubs, and homework, Sharon students are well occupied throughout the winter.

The National Hanar Saciety is made up af students wha have established autstanding recards in the areas af schalarship, leadership, service, and character. An average of B is the schalastic requirement, althaugh membership can not be gained an the basis of scholarship alane.

This year the saciety has cancentrated an twa abjectives: ta make students mare aware af each individual quality and ta be of service ta the students. Ta fulfill their first aim, they have established awards ta be presented ta students wha have excelled in any ane af these areas. These awards are entirely separate fram membership in the society. Ta increase their service ta the schaal, they have assumed the respansibility af Bible readings at assemblies and they have established a semi-tutarial system.

On February 10, eighteen Juniars and three Seniars, having met these high standards in all faur areas, were tapped and then inducted inta the saciety in an impressive candle-lighting ceremany.

Last year, the Sharon Debating Club was privileged to be granted membership in the National Forensic League, an honor society for debaters. This membership provides the individuals of the club with the incentive to participate in debates in order to qualify for admission.

Traveling to other New England states, the Varsity Team has a very full schedule, meeting and challenging other debaters. At present, Mr. Foley, the advisor, is working to broaden the program for non-varsity members of the club as well.

Through membership in the Debating Club, the students learn to think quickly under pressure and to articulate their thoughts. Since outstanding political figures must possess the qualities of a good debater, it is possible that Sharon High School is laying the groundwork for a future statesman.

The members of the Home Economics Club learn the basic housekeeping skills of sewing and cooking. They practice fundamental stitches and are shown how to use commercial patterns and sewing machines. The fun of creating attractive clothing is soon discovered. The girls also learn the reasons for serving balanced meals, as well as how to prepare them. Through Home Ec Club, college preparatory students can learn a little about their future household tasks.

DANCE BAND

"Aren't they tremendous?"

"Wasn't it heavenly?"

These were the comments on everyone's lips at the end of the performance by the Dance Band last year. Playing "Laura," "Night Train," and other selections, the members of the band captivated the students.

Because of infrequent practices, the Band has not yet been able to play this year. However, as we go to press, they promise another performance.

Varsity Club Conducts Activities

The Boys Varsity Club promotes good sportsmanship and sponsors many school activities. Each year it organizes a talent show, bringing forth talent that would otherwise go unrecognized. By performing on the apparatus and presenting humorous skits, it supports the Pep Rally, which strengthens school spirit and focuses student attention on basketball. Throughout the year, the members officiate at intramural games and coach these teams. To raise money they hold cake sales and sell cokes at basketball games; each year they donate a large sum to the scholarship fund. To become a member, each boy must earn a letter. Senior members receive jackets, and all receive pins. A trophy is given to the best all-around athlete and the best all-around sportsman.

Gymnasts' Performances Thrill Students

The performances of the Gymnastics Clubs could best be described as exhilarating and breathtaking. Demonstrations on the parallel bars, the horse, the rings and the ropes, together with the precise coordination of dramatic feats performed in rhythm to musical selections, never fail to leave spectators amazed.

Arduous practice sessions, held after school hours and many times during weekends and vacation time, account for the polished skills of the boys and girls. Their enthusiastic, whole-hearted participation in the clubs has turned them into one of the most well-known and admired activities in the school.

The Gladiators began a successful season by trouncing the Alumnae with a score of 34 to 27. Proceeding to win more than half their games, the girls proved that the first battle was a fair sampling of the spirited enthusiasm with which they were to confront the teams of the Hockomock League. Highlighting the season, the girls downed Staughton 47 to 32 after three years of unsuccessful attempts.

Under the expert guidance of Miss Jewitt, both juniar varsity and varsity teams succeeded in displaying well-organized teamwork and in exercising good sportsmanship.

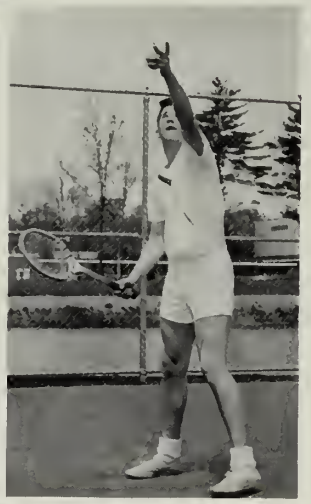
Boys' And Girls' Tennis

Awaiting a net shot

Mr. Gerald Dunn
Coach

Before the snow is off the ground and the brooks have thawed, the tennis team has started practicing. The first few work-outs, which are held in the gym, serve to get the boys back into form and condition muscles softened by the long period of inactivity. Exercises, as well as stroking practice, are stoically endured. Once outside, and practicing everyday, the boys are soon ready for a winning season.



Preparing for a serve

Like the boys, the girls also start practicing very early in the spring. Daily work-outs provide an excellent opportunity for the girls to improve their game. New members, after having learned the fundamentals during their first season, are ready to enter into regular competition the next year. Tentative team members play against each other, thus experiencing the pressures of a game. This gives them confidence and allows them to play their best in the interscholastic matches.

ORCHESTRA

The Sharon High School orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Philip Hoffman, is centered around the growing section of strings. The opportunity to read and perform is presented to the members in a varied program of symphonic and orchestral literature. Each year the members may audition for music scholarships which are available to all qualified students on the basis of talent and ability. Moreover, Sharon High School has often been represented at the Regional, State, and All-New England Festivals as well as at the Greater Boston Youth Symphony where the finest musicians and players combine to create one musical program.

is Great Success

After many weeks of fun-filled preparations, the stage was finally set far the Juniar Prom. Carrying out the theme, "Harbor Lights," was a flashing beacon, as dancers imagined themselves on a pier with the beautiful fifty-foot harbar mural in the background. Miniature lighthauses pravided memory-filled souvenirs far many.

Reigning as queen was Linda Loring, attended by the maids of honar, Pam Bailey and Jaan Furber.

Climaxing this biggest event af the year was the stately Grand March, led by the class afficers and Prom chairmen.

Although the social activities have varied with each season of the year, the academic life has remained constant. The students have maintained an outstanding scholastic record as indicated by the large number who have made Honor Roll and scored exceptionally high on such national tests as N.E.D.T., P.S.A.T. and N.M.S.Q.T.

For the month of Jonuary, the students enjoyed the rare privilege of having as their guest, Mr. Jalilolah Gharagozlu, from Tehran High School in Iran. They found him to be a man of great scholarly background, with experience as a teacher and school administrator, and a keen observer of the patterns of the American way of life. This privilege was made unusually beneficial by Mr. Gharagozlu's visits to and discussions with a lorge number of social studies classes. And this shared experience was made even more direct and profitable by the actual teaching done by this gentleman in a number of math classes, his field of specialization.

Although Mr. Gharagozlu came to the United States on the teacher exchange program, through the Fulbright Act and the Smith-Mundt Act, to learn directly about our way of life, the democratic type of government and education pattern, the visit was of mutual value; for to learn, at first hand, about the way of life, the government, and customs of another country was a very broadening experience for the students of Sharon High School.

This year's Freshman Class, with a tatal enrallment af 213, is the largest class in the history of Sharan High Schaal. Since with increased enrallment goes curriculum expansian, this class will have the advantage af being affered a larger variety af courses than the classes in the past. Far example, advanced caurses in French, math, and science will be available in their juniar and seniar years.

The Freshman have established themselves in all phases af high schaal activity. They have taken part in athletics by participating in soccer, basketball and track. Their schalastic achievement has been commendable this year; and the highlight of their year, the Freshman Dance, exemplified their adeptness at planning and executing a successful sacial functian. Their autstanding schaal spirit is evident at all schoal activities! Fram the record they have established in their first year at Sharan High, we feel sure they will be successful in their future years.

CLASS

"The highest distinction is service to others." The Class of 1961, which has always displayed fine school and class spirit, as well as outstanding scholastic ability, has, in the past year, continued to show interest in and concern for Sharon High School and its students. To pay tribute to the school's athletic program, the Seniors sponsored a Sports Dance at the close of the soccer season. They have provided the varsity and intramural teams with many of their leaders and they have served as officers of many clubs, putting their three years of experience to good use, as they assumed the many responsibilities which accompany positians of leadership. Thus, the Seniors have served as the backbone of the student body.

For their diligence and service, many have been recognized by the school individually and in groups, with honors, trophies, awards, and scholarships. The greatest single service performed by the combined efforts af many Seniors is the Marsengold, a complete record of the curricular and extra-curricular activities of the entire student body for the year 1960-61, a task of ever increasing difficulty with the rapid growth of the school.
